transportation system would I most likely use? It looks like Amtrak has one departure time. It will cost $240 and take five hours with a stop in Crawfordsville and other communities. You can avoid Crawfordsville by riding Megabus from Indianapolis to Chicago. It will cost $18. There are six departure times, and it will take a little over three hours. Looks like Megabus is the winner.

Another option might be for Megabus to design a few buses to operate on the rails. I suspect it would be cheaper to operate a bus on the rails than a full-size train. You might think of it as a modern day interurban system.
