Space shuttle Columbia breaks apart in the skies over Tyler, Texas, on Saturday, killing the seven astronauts aboard. The disaster occurred roughly 40 miles above Earth as the shuttle disintegrated, entering the upper atmosphere, slowing to 12,500 miles an hour toward its destination, the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.